FRANCIS JOSEPH, WEARY OF STATE CARES, PLANS TO MAKE CO-REGENT OF HEIR

ARCHDUKE CHARLES FRANCIS JOSEPH

ARCHDUCHESS ZITA

London reported that according to the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin an unconfirmed dispatch from Vienna said that Emperor Francis Joseph would issue on Dec. 2, the occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of the beginning of his reign, a proclamation making Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, heir apparent to the throne, co-regent of the empire.

Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, who is a grandnephew of the emperor, became heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary by the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, his uncle, just prior to the outbreak of the war. Archduke Charles has had command on the eastern front, especially in Galicia, and in the Italian theatre. At present he is in command of the combined German and Austro-Hungarian forces in the Carpathians and along the Transylvania frontier. Archduke Francis Ferdinand was a nephew of the aged emperor, Francis Joseph who will be eighty-seven years old if he lives until Aug. 18 next. Reports of his illness and weariness of the cares of state have been numerous in recent years, especially since the assassination of his nephew and heir and the outbreak of the great war. It has been reported that Francis

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH

Joseph was dead and his death was concealed from the Austro-Hungarians for fear of a revolution, but all such reports received no credence. The coming co-regent will be thirty years old on Aug. 17 next. His full name is Charles Francis Joseph Louis Hubert George Otto Marie and he is the son of the late Archduke Otto, brother of Francis Ferdinand. Like all members of the house of Hapsburg, Charles Francis Joseph is a Roman Catholic.

In 1911 Archduke Charles Francis Joseph was married to the Princess Zita of the house of Parma, and four sons have been born to the couple. The oldest is Francis Otto, born in 1912. The name of the youngest son, born in June of the present year, has not been made known, owing to the disturbed conditions of wartime. The house of Parma, to which the Archduchess Zita belongs by birth, is a branch of the Bourbons, now settled in Austria. The archduchess is the twelfth of the nineteen brothers and sisters of Prince Henry of Parma, present head of the house.

It has been reported many times that the death of the aged emperor will mark the break up of the Austro-Hungarian empire, which, it is alleged, has been held together only by the loyalty of its constituent parts to Francis Joseph. He has sat on the throne since 1848, a period of sixty-eight years, the second longest reign in history. The longest was that of Louis XIV of France—seventy-two years—but Louis was only a child when he ascended the throne, while Francis Joseph had reached the age of eighteen before he became emperor.

Burying an English Soldier.
Any soldier below the rank of sergeant who dies a natural death while in barracks has an escort of thirteen men and a sergeant at his funeral. While a lieutenant is entitled to forty men, in the charge of a brother officer of similar rank. The same applies to second lieutenants. Three rounds of "blank" rifle ammunition are fired for every rank from private to colonel. A brigadier general is given eleven guns and a full general seventeen guns. The body of a field marshal is saluted by nineteen guns. On the way to the place where the body is to be interred the "Dead March" and very solemn tunes are played, but on the way back lively tunes of any description may be played.—London Standard.

Farms on Edge.
What might be described as farms on edge are the famous rice terraces upon the mountain slopes of the Philippine Islands. These farms, in the shape of ribbons miles and miles long, cover sides of ranges that in this country would be considered about right for goat pastures, so steep and rugged are they. The patient island farmers cultivate every foot of them, however, the ledges extending high toward the summit and covering immense areas. The grade of the terraces is skillfully designed to carry the water down the mountain side without waste and without washing away the land, so that the crops are benefited by a rainfall which would otherwise wash away all the soil from the rocks.—St. Nicholas.

Names of Flowers.
The camellia was named from a missionary in the orient, Kamel. On his return to France he brought with him some gorgeous specimens of a flower which he called the rose of Japan. His friends, however, gave it his name and called it camellia. Dahlias were brought from Peru by one Andre Dahl. Fuchsias were named for their discoverer, Leonard Fuchs. Magnolias received the name of Professor Magnol of Montpellier, who first brought the beautiful trees from Asia and America to France. Lavender is so called because the Romans put a spray of it in the water in which they washed their hands. The Latin word to wash is lavare.

Arithmetical Progression.
He had completed jealously that she had too many other young men around. "The idea!" she laughed. "Why, I can count them all on the fingers of my left hand. The index finger is Mr. Smart, the second finger is Mr. Balder, and the third finger of my left hand—the third finger is you."

Next day he got a ring for it.—Boston Transcript.

Well Rid of It.
"Oh, John," shrieked Mrs. Dorkins. "The baby has swallowed a quarter!" Mr. Dorkins took a handful of change out of his pocket and looked it over. "Calm yourself, Maria," he said. "It was that bad one I've been trying to get rid of."—Exchange.

Summed Up.
Do not waste your time upon social questions. What is the matter with the poor is poverty. What is the matter with the rich is uselessness.—G. Bernard Shaw.

The Style of It.
"Read my palm, please." "Ah, you want a hand picked future, do you?"—Baltimore American.

Court Fools.
The custom of having court fools survived longest in Russia, where Peter the Great often had twelve.

Spain's Royal Palace.
From one who paid a visit not long ago to King Alfonso at Madrid comes a wonderful account of his palace. It is bigger than either Buckingham palace or Windsor and is rarely inhabited by less than 2,000 people. On entering the palace one sees some 150 lackeys sitting about in different directions, and at the foot of the stairs and on the landings stand halberdiers in their uniforms of white and black and tricorn hats. The lift that carries you to the upstairs apartments is all rose colored brocade and cut glass—quite glorious within. The room where their majesties receive the diplomatic corps is noted for the beauty of the blue silk walls and clock with a life size figure of "Time" carrying the earth—a globe which forms the clock. Here are four superb chandeliers of rock crystal, set in gold filigree. The works of art include two beautiful pictures by Goya. Queen Mary Louise of Parma and Charles IV. of Bourbon. The state dining room is famous for its frescoes and tapestries and Sevres vases that are not less than six feet high—the loveliest examples of blue china.—London Gentlemen.

Washington a Mecca of Diplomats.
In no capital are there as many foreign diplomats as there are in Washington. This is because all the Latin American states as well as European and Asiatic have embassies or legations in this country, and some of them do not maintain full missions elsewhere. Not all of these foreign representatives are kept busy by their regular duties, however, but they communicate with the state department whenever an opportunity offers, and sometimes they create the opportunity. Their notes must be treated with punctilious consideration without reference to the importance of the contents. One note may be only a request for an order to admit free of duty at a custom house a basket of champagne and another may inclose the draft of a treaty, but the state department must attend to the champagne as well as the treaty; otherwise it will irritate the representative of a friendly nation.—Galliard Hunt in Harper's Magazine.
